THE NEW FLAG

The admission of Alaska as the forty-ninth state in the Union will necessitate the addition of another star in Old Glory. This is a process which has been almost constant, and which has already functioned more than once in the twentieth century.

The forty-ninth star will allow the flag to have seven rows of seven stars each, or six rows, five with eight stars and one with nine. (The present flag has six rows of eight stars each). In the beginning the stripes of the flag represented the thirteen original states.

And while the present flag still has thirteen stripes thre was a time when there were fifteen stripes in the flag — just after two additional states (in addition to the original 13) were added to the Union. But Congress, realized that stripes could not be added for each new state, and stars became the designator of the number of states, and the stripes remained to represent the thirteen original members of the union.

The original flag of the Union is something about which there is much confusion. It is now pretty firmly established that Betsy Ross did not make the first flag, even though as late as 1952 a commemorative stamp was issued in that vein.

Our flag originated in the Marine Committee of the Second Continental Congress, in 1775, and news of its adoption was announced in September of that year. There is a possibility, though, that the flag was used by John Paul Jones even earlier. In any event, this first flag was a flag of seven red stripes, six white, and thirteen white stars on a blue field, representing a "new constellation."

In 1882, the Stars and Stripes was finally put into general use, and has been collecting stars ever since. While the number of stars conform to the number of states, no particular star is associated with any particular state, although some designate stars by beginning left to right at the top and placing the states in the order in which they came into the Union.

Although there was considerable opposition to the admission of Alaska as a state, that battle is now over, and it behooves all to work together for the greater Union. As of now, we do not join in the belief of some, that Hawaii should also be admitted. Some even favor admitting a number of territories, such as the Virgin Islands. We think for the present, Alaska is enough, and that statehood will be the incentive for a vast and rapid development of that tremendous area.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

There are those who say "time flies," and yet — looking back to twenty years ago — the things that happened then seem a long, long time back into the distant past. For twenty years is not a long time, and it's hard to believe — even though time does fly — that twenty years ago the world was not at war: World War II had not even begun.

It was on July 18th, twenty years ago, that Douglas Corrigan of "Wrong Way Corrigan" fame, flew from Brooklyn to Dublin, in a very light plane. That seems a long time ago.

It was twenty years ago that Spanish insurgent forces split Spain in two, reaching the sea between Madrid and Barcelona. The Spanish Civil War ended the next year, 1939. And it was just twenty years ago, in Europe, that Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain signed a "Peace Declaration" wth Adolph Hitler.

This was a year before the opening of World War II, which now seems to have faded into the distant past, what with rockets, satellites, new weapons and the Communist menace of today. But it was just twenty years ago that these things were happening — and the world was drifting toward inevitable war.

ADAMS MUST GO

Speculation around informed circles now, is not whether or not Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams "will go," but rather the matter of timing the departure, and conjecture as to a successor. Informed opinion is very soon after adjourns in August, and at least two months prior to the November elections, Mr. Adams will submit his resignation, and it is being talked that Interior Secretary Fred Seaton, General Wilton Persons and General Alfred Gruenther are being considered as replacements.

As unfortunate as is the whole Adams case, this newspaper does not believe that it alone will do major damage to the Republican ticket in November. A strong Democratic tide is sweeping the nation, and with or without Adams as an issue, the Democrats would have piled up a tremendous victory at the polls. Now, it will merely be more so.

For TV and lights as steady as Mrs. M's

...you need HOUSEPOWER

Mrs. Modern's electric servants never quarrel over the current supply. All round the house, they turn themselves on and off without causing a flicker of the lights or a jitter in the TV picture.

Her appliances go well together and all give top performance because there's power enough to go round. Plenty of power at the electric entrance to Mrs. M's home . . . rated at 100 amperes. And plenty of regular and heavy-duty circuits to carry needed power to every room.

Plan now to be Mrs. M! VEPCO's power-line-to-meter free wiring makes modern Housepower cheaper to install. Talk with your Electrical Coutractor about it. Get wired for Better Electric Living from attic to basement . . . and in the garden, too!
